Public Has Big "Investment" In Earle Clements

CINCINNATI, May 15 (AP) — Sen. Earle C. Clements, seeking re-nomination in the Democratic primary May 29, said in a television address here Monday night that "the people of Kentucky have an investment in me."

Clements, who stressed his seniority in the Senate, said "whether you agree with the seniority system or not, it does count for a great deal in Congress." He added that he could be of greater service to Kentucky during the next six years than could his opponent, Joe B. Bates.

In referring to Bates' offer to withdraw from the race against him in exchange for nomination to the vacant seat of the late Sen. Allen W. Barkley, Clements said, "The only kind of a deal I will make is that if you elect me to the Senate, you will have all of my interest, my devotion and my loyalty to you and your cause."

Clements described Bates' campaign as the "shortest in history." Clements was slated to visit Sandy Hook, West Liberty and Jackson today.

Bill Honoring Barkley Introduced

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP) — Rep. Noble J. Gregory (D-Ky.) introduced bills in the House Monday to honor Prudash and his most famous citizen — the late Sen. Allen W. Barkley.

One bill calls for a special issue of not less than 500,000 fifty-cent pieces in tribute to Paducah's 100th anniversary this summer and to Barkley.

The other would name the dam to be built on the Cumberland River "Barkley Dam," and a lake it will create, "Barkley Lake."

A similar measure has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Earle C. Clements (D-Ky.).

Gregory, who represented the Kentucky House delegation at Barkley's funeral in Paducah, said he had sent the flag that flew at halfmast over the House on Barkley's death to Lowes High School. Barkley was born near Lowes.

Wheat Support Price Increased To $2.00 Bushel

The minimum national price support for 1956-crop wheat has been increased to $2.00 per bushel, which at the present time is $1.87 per cent of parity, according to Q. D. Wilson, Chairman of the Caloway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. The support at harvest will be not less than $2.5 per cent of parity as of July 1, 1956.

The minimum support for the 1956-crop wheat referendum, June 25, was $1.81 per bushel based on 76 per cent of parity in June 1955.

The minimum rates currently announced, Chairman Wilson explains, will apply to the 36 states in the commercial wheat area. In the other 12 states, where wheat production is relatively small and where acreage allotments and marketing quotas are not in effect this year, the support will be 75 per cent of the support in the commercial area.

The 1955 wheat crop in the commercial wheat area was supported at $2.4 per cent of parity, which, based on price relationships July 1, 1955, came to a national average of $2.08 per bushel. The rate in Caloway, based on this average, was $2.18 per bushel for number 1 wheat.

GEORGE H. GREEN, 21-year-old factory worker of Rhombus, Michigan, was injured early Sunday when this 1950 Nash piled into a bridge abutment 1 1/2 miles east of Puryear on Highway 140. Confederate Veteran Is 110 Today

SLANT, Va., May 15 (AP) — "Uncle John" Salling-felt old age "a creepin' up on me" today in observing his 110th birthday.

The good natured Confederate veteran complained he was "feeling tough."

"My chest is tight and I've got a tight feeling in my throat," he said. But his youngest daughter, Mrs. H. A. McCamy, 54, just laughed. "He's feeling fine, he's hardly had a cold all winter."

"Uncle John," as folks in these Virginia foothills affectionately call him, got up a little earlier than usual today to greet a delegation of state troopers. They brought him a 10-gallon Texas-style hat and a new gray shirt to complete his uniform.

Salling, a long cigar poked in his mouth, chatted with some 300 visitors on the porch of his small farmhouse where he sat in his wheelchair. He was wearing his freshly cleaned uniform and his jet black hair had been neatly brushed by Mrs. McCamy against his mild protests.

Salling is one of only three surviving members of the Confederate army. The others are William A. Lundy, 107, Laurel Hill, Fla., and Walter Williams, 109, Franklin, Tex. The lone Union soldier still alive is Albert Woolson, 109, of Duluth, Minn.

CORRECTION

An error appeared yesterday in the Ledger and Times in which Charles J. James was reported as having been promoted. His promotion came within his company, the Davison Chemical Company division of the W. R. Grace Company of Nashville, Tennessee. The word Germany was substituted for the intended word "company" in the head of the article.

James is promoting the high analysis fertilizer, advertised elsewhere in today's issue of the Ledger and Times.

Harriman Picks Up Delegate Bloc

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP) — New York Gov. Averell Harriman has picked up his first sizeable bloc of delegates outside his own state in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Wyoming state Democratic convention, which Harriman addressed Monday, elected a slate of 28 delegates of which 12 are Harriman supporters, though not officially pledged.

Harriman's campaign in Wyoming and other northwestern states and today's presidential preference vote in Nebraska highlighted political developments on the national scene.

In the Nebraska primary Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) is opposed on the Democratic ticket and today's presidential preference vote in Nebraska highlighted political developments on the national scene.

The contest in staunchly Republican Nebraska will have little significance unless normally GOP voters in rural areas across over to the Democrats to protest Eisenhower administration farm policies. Voters in farm areas and towns of less than 7,000 are not required to register by party and may ask for either ballot.

Delegates being named in today's Nebraska voting are not bound by the outcome of the residential preference balloting. Nebraska will have 18 votes at the GOP convention and 12 at the Democratic convention.

In the 1952 and 1954 Nebraska primaries, about two-thirds of the vote was cast on the Republican side. Sixty-nine per cent of the Nebraska vote went to Mr. Eisenhower in the 1952 election.

The delegation which will cast Wyoming's 14 votes at the Democratic convention technically is uncommitted. But 12 of the 28 delegates named Monday have indicated a preference for Harriman. No more than five were considered backers of Kefauver.

Harriman put himself directly into the Democratic race Monday when he told the Wyoming convention his name will be entered at the convention "not as a favorite son but as a candidate."

Later Monday Harriman moved into Montana and told an airport audience at Billings he would be "very happy to have Montana support me" at the Chicago Democratic convention Aug. 13.

Harriman was scheduled to speak today at Butte, Mont., and Seattle. He will campaign at Pullman, Wash., and Idaho Falls, Idaho, Wednesday and at Salt Lake City, Utah, and Reno, Nev., Thursday.

Kefauver and the third major candidate for the Democratic nomination, Adlai E. Stevenson, campaigned today in Oregon, seeking write-in votes so that state's primary on Friday.

Eden Under Fire For Frogman Incident; Will Get Worse

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Prime Minister Anthony Eden is under heavy attack again, and demands for his resignation may be expected to intensify.

This time it is the "frogman incident" which the House of Commons in London debated Monday night.

Eden has been attacked on all sorts of issues, however, since he took Churchill's place on April 6, 1955.

Domestic issues, British commonwealth issues, foreign issues, have succeeded each other.

Influential Conservatives have joined the Labor Party opposition in blaming Eden for everything which goes wrong or threatens to go wrong.

The chief complaint against him in his own party as well as in the Labor Party, is that his leadership is weak. He lacks Churchill's masterly grip, his critics say.

That can hardly be disputed. But where is another Churchill to be found in Britain or any other country?

Eden Takes Blame

Take the frogman incident. Eden did not know that frogman Lionel

Crabb was going to snoop around the hull of the Russian cruiser Ordzhonikidze in Portsmouth Harbor during the visit of Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev.

In fact, Eden probably had heard only vaguely, if at all, that such a man as frogman Crabb existed.

"But Eden takes the blame for the snooping, for refusing to tell the full story of it to the House of Commons and especially for telling Russia more than he did Commons when he replied to a Soviet protest.

One reason for it all is that Eden inherited from Churchill a plague of troublesome problems, in which a drift toward inflation is one of the biggest.

Another is that Eden lacks Churchill's worm dominant personality. Undoubtedly, when Churchill was prime minister, more people hated him than hate Eden now. But not so many like Eden very much.

Then there is the British political system itself. When anything goes wrong in Washington, say, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson or Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson may take the blame, or be given it.

More Lumps Coming

In Britain, the prime minister takes the rap. Eden is taking it now over the frogman incident. That was an Admiralty or Secret Service matter. He will take it on and not a rising wedge over the Cyprus crisis, or over the budget in which Chancellor of Exchequer Harold Macmillan provided for a government bond lottery to encourage savings.

Eden is the chief of government, not like President Eisenhower the chief of state. Queen Elizabeth is chief of state. And under the British system she can do no wrong. That is not because Britons regard their sovereign as sacrosanct. It is because the sovereign is kept above — and strictly out of — politics. He or she acts by advice of the prime minister.

So Eden, partly because he is not another Churchill, is taking his lumps. But he is actually a man of strong character, and a fighter.

He also has a majority of 59 over the combined opposition in the 630-seat House of Commons.

The attack on Eden may be expected to continue, and he may be expected to continue as prime minister.

Hog Stealing Case Ends In Hung Jury

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Jackie Pittman resulted in a hung jury yesterday.

The trial took most of the day yesterday with the jury receiving instructions from Judge H. H. Lovett, Sr., about 4:00 p.m.

Pittman is charged with taking a hog valued at more than $40.00 from H. M. Scarbrough. The hog was valued at about $45.00 and was allegedly taken from the farm last year.

Witnesses were heard for most of the day, most of them for the prosecution. Testimony was that a car belonging to Pittman resembled a car seen in the area on the day the hog was taken.

A Federal Bureau of Investigation officer testified that blood stains in the back seat of the Pittman coupe were hog blood. He also testified that it would be impossible to ascertain whether the blood came from the same hog that was allegedly stolen.

Mrs. Buddy Guinn testified that Pittman brought fresh hog meat to her home near Paducah on the day following the alleged crime. Her husband brought the fresh meat into the house, she said and he was with Pittman.

Pittman's father testified that his son Jackie and Guinn remained with him all afternoon the day of the crime was supposed to have been committed, in a house trailer.

The trial has been reset for the next term of Circuit Court. No cases are being heard today.

Size Of H-Bomb Now "Not Too Big"

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP) — Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, disclosed today that H-bombs have been reduced in size that they can be carried by light bombers.

Twining told the United Press that the new B66 light bomber, for instance, is capable of carrying the H-bomb.

Twining's statement was one of the first official indications that the H-bomb can be carried by planes other than huge heavy bombers such as the B36 and the B52.

A reporter commented to Twining that if the B66 can carry the H-bomb, "you must be getting the bomb pretty small."

"They are not too big," Twining answered with a smile.

Twining supported the assertion by Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, Naval chief of operations that carrier-based planes are capable of carrying the H-bomb. Burke made the statement last week in an interview with the United Press.

Burke indicated that the ASD attack plane, which has not yet gone into operational use, is the Navy's H-bomber. The B66 is the Air Force's version of the Navy-developed ASD.

Dr. Wildy, his son, rode horseback at first, as did Mr. Walter Johnson, but both of them used the buggy too.

Dr. Will Mason's first buggy horse was a pretty light roan and "Crips Ragoon" was his first driver. Later Riese Dunn served in this capacity, for years. Mr. Asher Graham's horse was a sizeable black. He was driven to a phaeton.

GENERATORS FOR JOHNSONVILLE

The agreement reached last Friday by a House-Senate conference committee to permit the Tennessee Valley Authority to use its own funds to install additional generators at three of its steam plants is of local interest because two of these generators will be installed at the New Johnsonville steam plant near Camden.

The agreement is hailed as a major TVA victory, not because it gives the agency any new authority, but because it continues one it already has in the face of stiff demand that it be discontinued or drastically curbed.

And the agreement is in opposition to recommendations of the budget director that TVA be required to turn in all its earnings to the treasury and depend upon each session of Congress to provide it with operating, as well as construction, funds.

Of course the agreement can be set aside by Congress when the question comes up this week, but this is not expected. As a matter of fact the joint committee was set up by Congress for the sole purpose of making a study of TVA operations, and future needs, and it is inconceivable that both houses would repudiate their own plan.

The action of the committee is the first favorable one taken so far as TVA is concerned since the proposal to build a new steam plant at Fulton, Tennessee, was cancelled three years ago, and the infamous Dixon-Yates contract was executed. We sincerely hope this means the unreasonable opposition to TVA has been stopped dead in its tracks, and that the Eisenhower Administration recognizes the sinister complexion of the fight against this major agency.

We have said all along if the Republicans are turned out of office after one brief administration in twenty years it will be because it is too stupid to take advantage of such monumental social agencies as TVA which Republicans, under the leadership of such men as Norris and Vandenberg helped to establish.

Prompt acceptance of the joint committee's recommendations that TVA be permitted to invest its own funds in additional generators will remove some of the most bitter opposition to the administration so far as Tennessee is concerned.

People still alive can remember how thrilled they were as children to read about predictions of Jules Verne, one of the most far-fetched of which was a ship that could travel under the surface of the ocean.

We hope some of them were standing along the Hudson River in Manhattan, or New Jersey, yesterday as the submarine Nautilus performed to usher in "Armed Services Week." Even Jules Verne's imaginative brain did not reckon with nuclear-powered ships of any kind, nor did he even mention Uranium-235, or atomic energy.

The Nautilus is not new to the United States Navy as it was launched in January, 1955. It has cruised more than 30,000 miles and only this past winter it submerged in New York harbor and surfaced in the harbor at Puerto Rico 1,370 miles away. And the Navy says it can go around the world without surfacing, and travel at a speed of "more than 20 knots per hour."

The ship is new, however, to the public and especially the press, for newsmen have for the first time been invited aboard, and they made the trip from the home base at Groton, Conn., to New York mostly under water, and some of them actually steered the modern ship.

It is also new to the public to be told just how a nuclear reactor is used in submarine to generate steam, as heretofore propulsion has been made possible only by electric storage batteries which have to be recharged every time a vessel submerges.

It is too much to expect that the United States will be the only country to have atomic-powered submarines in its navy, but it isn't too much to hope that we will maintain superiority in this important fighting ship. Or that we will continue to pioneer in development of atomic energy for use in peace as well as war.

"Body In Box" Death Unsolved

LOUISVILLE, May 10 (AP)—The bizarre "Body in the Box" death of Marjorie Campbell remained unsolved here today as police reached a dead end on every avenue of investigation.

A body identified as that of Miss Campbell, 46, was found on the roof of the Hart Distributing Co. in the downtown area here May 4, a year to the day after she disappeared.

Since then an exhaustive investigation has failed to turn up any clues as to why and how the body, which showed no evidence of foul play, got on the roof of the building where she formerly worked.

A quiet woman, she had few friends and no known enemies.

She was not particularly attractive, had no boy friends and worked for only $25 a week, saving some of her salary, leaving police at a loss for a motive.

Her relatives said she never had showed suicidal tendencies, even during the two times in her life when she had what they termed "nervous breakdowns."

Despite a rather unhappy life, which included two love affairs in which she was jilted, she remained easy going, her mother, Mrs. Katherine Campbell said.

She lived quietly, usually going home to read or listen to the radio after work. The day of her disappearance she called home to tell her mother and aunt that she would be at home for lunch. She never was seen alive again.

To get to the roof where the body was discovered, involves taking an elevator to the fourth floor, climbing a steep ladder to a trapdoor leading to the roof.

Police theorized that the body must have been carried up at night.

Officials of the Hart firm, which now occupies the building of the Peplin used furniture firm, said however, that someone who worked in the building could have carried the box up during the day without arousing suspicion.

What's New In Washington

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — What's new in Washington? The help around Capitol Hill, like many an aproned housewife, is busy feather dusting and getting the premises prettied up for summer and visitors. But most of our ladies in simple living don't have the problem of dismantling chandeliers. All of the dangling bobbles on the bill have to be unhooked, scrubbed and put back in its quite a chore.

The State Department wants Austrians now living in the United States to know about a new Austrian social security law. Those who have claims can file them at a number of places, the first of which is:

Pensionversicherungsanstalt Der Angestellten (Employees Retirement Fund) Wein V. Blochturngasse 11, Austria.

There are two other addresses, but they are too hard to spell. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has some interesting hobbies. One is pattering around the garden, planting carrots and petunias.

He also is better than the garden variety of horsemen having won several silver cups.

Our informant from Heidelberg, Germany, cables that the Army is collecting souvenirs.

Some of the kids are making their own take-homes. Like cuff links from melted-down coins. Pebbles along the beaches grow up to be "jewelry." Hotel baggage labels are decorations. Air ash trays, Museum tickets, wind up under the glass of cocktail tables.

None is for sale. Strictly hobbies.

The Postal News Services Bulletin reports that carrier Harold Miller of Rochester, Indiana, who had no trouble at all delivering a letter addressed simply: "Milo, Thelma, Jean, Joan, two blocks south on thumb hand side."

Miller got it there on time, even though the sender didn't say which thumb.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson hired a new hand the other day. Asked if the man had enough authority, the secretary replied: "He has not enough authority to do the wrong thing and keep it up very long."

Clarabell Now Is Sir Clacky Wack

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — I'm a circus fan and always have loved clowns. But somehow I never could cotton to one "Clarabell," who used to appear in baggy britches and size 24 shoes in a TV thing called "Howdy Doodie."

That is, until I met him.

When "Clarabell" appeared on the video he was mute. But in my house, with the young set for blocks around invading our privacy in the sundown hours, it was heard to ignore him. All "Clarabell" ever did to earn big money was to run around the set and make a lot of racket pumping a 1910 Ford auto horn.

But, by golly, the man really talks. He's still a clown, although he has shed the stigma of the dumb. And to prove, he arrived in United Press quarters here, dressed in a gaudy hand-stitched get-up which he said came to $500. And while he was appearing he appeared in the wrong room, followed by a cute little 6-year old blond called "Miss Sunbeam" (named after a bread), her mammy and a lot of other people.

City Editor Unimpressed

The city room is no place for clowns who aren't newspaper people. The boss was editing some deathless prose, which could not rock the universe. Anyhow, he was in no mood for clowns.

"Run along down the hall," the boss said, "to room 702."

The clown ran.

"Clarabell" came in and said "howdy."

He's still a clown, as I said; a "he" clown and not a "she" clown, and he let it be known out loud that he is on a new TV show now and would like to be known by a new name from now on—"Sir Clacky Wack," which is supposed to be a lot more dignified than "Clarabell." At least the "sir" handle.

Actually, Edwin Alberian of Weehawken, N. J., is sort of out of character as a clown. He didn't start out to be one in the first place. He graduated from Columbia University in 1942, heading toward being a chemist. Broke, he decided he had better quiet the growl in his tummy so he latched on as a clown.

He did pretty well, but when the show people discovered that he had a fine bass voice he branched out into opera, the operettas among the summer first-nighters, the concert swing and, also dabbled in musical comedy. Lately he has been a guest on a lot of big television shows. The very young likely do not recognize the man without his auto horn.

Sings A Fancy Bass

As "Sir Clacky Wack" on his new show he'll have a chance to bring out his talents.

The erstwhile "Clarabell," a tag he would just as soon forget, fancies himself as a singer, which he is—a pretty fancy bass. After chemistry and between clownings, he managed to get into Carnegie Hall, which he filled to the rafters with his rich voice.

Even now, busy as he is, he keeps in touch with the singing business.

On Saturday afternoons he gives out for money at the Grand Hotel in upstate New York with Jewish ballads. And often on a Sunday morning, Ed runs down to New York and sings in a church choir.

Worse moment he had while playing "Clarabell" was when a 5-year old came up to him and shouted:

"You're not 'Clarabell,' You're a man."

That Ed is.

CAT SKATTED

HALEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Hollis Miller had a sure-fire way of getting rid of a cat. He shipped it by Railway Express to a family in Ft. Worth, Tex., 700 miles away.

That was nine months ago. The cat disappeared from the new Texas home shortly after it got there, but showed up at Miller's place this week.

WANTS VANDERBILT BACK

MRS. ALFRED GWYNNE VANDERBILT, saddened by separation from her husband (right), is shown with Alfred, Jr., 6, and Heidi, 8, on return to the Vanderbilt apartment after picking up the children at a private school. "As far as I know," she said, "there's been no other woman. The thing I want more than anything else is a reconciliation." (International)

Annual May Recital Given Saturday By McConnell Students

The annual May Recital given by the students of Mrs. D. F. McConnell proved an appropriate time for those taking part to pay tribute to their mothers by dedicating the program to them.

The program had a very happy beginning with Michael Hallinan playing "Oh, Susanna" ending with a duet arrangement of "Glow Worm" played by Mary and Nancy Bazzell resulted in a sparkling finish for the occasion. The enjoyable numbers were varied in solo and duet arrangements including popular, southern airs and music from the old masters.

Four groups were presented and at the conclusion of each group the audience enjoyed group singing with Nancy Bazzell accompanying. At each door to greet the guests and giving out the programs were Mrs. Max Parks and son, Max, and Mrs. Thomas Scruggs and daughter, Toni.

The room was a thing of beauty with the mantle banked with roses of different hues and other spring flowers played at vantage points. Hunter Love took pictures of the group.

Mrs. O. B. Geurin Hostess For Meet Of Pottertown Club

Mrs. O. B. Geurin was hostess for the meeting of the Pottertown Homemakers Club held at her home on Tuesday, May 8, at eleven o'clock in the morning.

The president, Mrs. W. A. Ladd, presided at the meeting. The roll call and treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Maynard Ragsdale.

The main lesson on "Crafts" was discussed by Mrs. Bryan Overcast in the absence of Mrs. Jesse McCutcheon. The recreational period was conducted by Mrs. Ordis Key.

A potluck dinner was served at the noon hour to the eight members and four visitors — Mrs. J. O. Cook, Mrs. Thomas Sammons, Mrs. Mable Outland, and Miss Mable Robertson.

The next meeting will be a work day with Mrs. Sam Rogers as the hostess.

The living room of the presidential suite at the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center is unusually handsome for a service hospital. The room is 23 by 28 feet, with gray-green walls and matching carpet.

There are gold drapes at two windows facing west. The fireplace is faced with blue and white marble.

The furniture includes a gold and white upholstered couch and two Williamsburg-style green love seats. There also are two wing chairs covered in a pale yellow fabric decorated with red roses.

Several straight chairs are upholstered in tapestry and there is a mahogany leather-covered ottoman with matching chair that has a red velvet seat.

The main lesson on "Crafts" was discussed by Mrs. Bryan Overcast in the absence of Mrs. Jesse McCutcheon. The recreational period was conducted by Mrs. Ordis Key.

A potluck dinner was served at the noon hour to the eight members and four visitors — Mrs. J. O. Cook, Mrs. Thomas Sammons, Mrs. Mable Outland, and Miss Mable Robertson.

The next meeting will be a work day with Mrs. Sam Rogers as the hostess.

A EUROPEAN black stork submits to servicing on its aluminum bill at Crandon Park zoo in Miami, Fla. OVER 175 HORSEPOWER IN RESERVE!

...When you're cruising at everyday speeds!

THE ROCKET'S EXTRA MARGIN OF POWER MEANS AN EXTRA MARGIN OF SAFETY!

HIGH HORSEPOWER... high torque... high compression. It takes all three to describe Oldsmobile's Rocket! But there's still another important side to the picture. It's reserve power—in abundance! In fact, at normal cruising speeds the Rocket still has more than 175 horsepower left... beyond what it takes to propel the car! It's this reserve that whips you through a passing situation so quickly, so effortlessly. That means economy, too! The Rocket just goes along, when lesser engines are straining. You can see the result in Oldsmobile's double victory in the Mobilgas Economy Run. The modern "big bore—short stroke" design cuts friction and power loss. The Rocket's design made high compression practical... and today's Rocket hits a high 9.25 to 1 compression! Come take the wheel of a Rocket Oldsmobile. You will feel a distinct difference in performance, in riding and handling qualities... just as you see a glamorous difference in Oldsmobile's beauty. We'll be looking for you soon!

CHAPTER 34
 THE OLD voodoo priest's two-roomed, palm-thatched hut was crissed in the room which served as a kitchen and sitting room there was a handmade table of native wood, and on this table Cynthia, the old man attached the lantern to a cord over the table and by its light Bruce made a cursory examination. His face was tight with strain as finally he looked across the table at Val.

"I'll have to operate. It's our one chance of saving her life. Get the old man to put on as much hot water as he can and see if he hasn't a clean sheet somewhere. She has a slight concussion and will remain unconscious or I couldn't operate without an anesthetic... but we shall need bandages."

But there was no linen at all in the hut. The priest apparently slept on the floor between ragged, dirty-looking blankets.

Bruce was sterilizing his instruments in boiling water. "But we must have bandages," he repeated irritably.

"My slip is clean. It's all I can suggest," Val said.

"Then for heaven's sake let's have it," he said curtly.

She got out of it on the dark porch. The old priest had taken the driver into the other room and was attending to him.

"You look after your kind, I look after mine," he had said to them flatly. "My boy not badly hurt, but it is his mind. I must make it so that when he wakes in the morning he forget he see the three-legged calf, otherwise he die."

"Of all the darn fool nonsense," Bruce said angrily as he ripped off his coat and began to roll up his sleeves.

"I thought I saw something cross the road, but it was probably my imagination," Val said half inaudibly.

"For heaven's sake," his dark brown eyes glowered down at her angrily, "pull yourself together, Val. You and I have a difficult job on our hands tonight."

When the first suggestion of dawn came through the cracked glass window Bruce felt Cynthia's pulse and listened to her heartbeat. He nodded briefly and said, "She'll be all right."

Cynthia lay on the table resting comfortably, covered by a rug Val had fetched from the car with the first glimmer of light. The storm had passed, and as the sun rose slowly from behind the blue mountains in fantastic colors of orange and red, it seemed difficult to believe that last night had actually happened.

"Let's get outside and get a breath of fresh air," Bruce said explosively.

The priest stood side by side on the small porch breathing in the cool morning air.

"You were wonderful, Val," Bruce spoke out of a long silence. "I couldn't have saved her without your help."

"I'm glad I didn't let you down this time, Bruce," she said quietly.

"Val," he turned sharply toward her. "I've been a fool, haven't I? I believed on the ship I was only doing what I did through a sense of duty, but perhaps I was prompted by jealousy too. For the past two years I've hated Hanson. But Val—how could I have dragged you into it all, you whom I love? Can you forgive me?"

He bent his head and kissed her white face; he kissed her forehead, then he kissed her lips. She lay close against him. She could feel her heart beating against his.

"Darling, you'll love me and help me forget, won't you?" he muttered with his lips on her hair.

She caught up his last words half automatically. "Forget, Bruce?"

"Yes," he said raggedly. "At last I want to forget. Maybe I can now, now that I've saved Cynthia's life. If I hadn't been here at this time and in this place, she would have died. I've always felt that in a way I was responsible for Eileen's death. You know the post-mortem revealed she didn't die immediately

Frank And...

My cousin, Frank, owned the first rubber tired buggy I ever saw. Later my brother Wallace bought it for his matched team of blacks and he had the first double, breast strap harness I ever saw. Wallace was a good hand with horses. It was said that he gave them exceptional attention at the stable but they just had to go down the road when in the harness. Two other terms, he owned I especially remember. A team of pintos, Frank and Charley. Three of their four eyes were glass, the term applied for lack of color in the eye ball. It was thought that they were twins because they were restless and unruly if separated. They always shared the same stall and ate from the same trough and manger. The other team was a pair of small white mares named Dotsie and Trixie. They were driven to a white covered, rubber-tired delivery wagon used to deliver groceries.

There was variety in harness too. Those with gaudy taste frequently had celluloid rings of many colors at different places on the harness, especially the bridle and martingales. At one time in Mur-

REPAIR AND REFINISH OUTDOOR FURNITURE

Prepare for a summer out of doors by repairing or refinishing broken or worn furniture. Wooden furniture will require different treatment from rattan or wicker furniture. Replace broken pieces with new lumber, using the piece to be replaced as a pattern for the new one. Furniture broken or worn beyond repair can be completely rebuilt from new lumber with the disassembled pieces serving as patterns for the new ones. Several duplicates of an old favorite piece can be made easily in this manner.

Old furniture to be refinished should first be cleaned with water and sandpaper. Thoroughly brush worn or chipped spots with a wire brush, sand smooth and feather with wood putty and sand smooth when dry. Touch up all such spots with enamel undercoater.

Curiosity
Has Saved
Millions

Curiosity may have killed the cat, but it has also saved millions and millions of human lives. Research is one of the highest forms of man's natural curiosity. Man's eagerness to know the "why's" of life has been responsible for much of our progress and civilization.

Medical research has been responsible for controlling a number

Checkmated?

A SEARCH is on for Mrs. Catherine Nye (above), missing in Syracuse, N. Y., since April 27. Her husband Carl reported she was last seen boarding a bus for New York. After giving that information to police, he left for Canada on a fishing trip. Mrs. Nye, a chess expert, is 5-foot-11, wears a short red coat and brown dress. She has brown eyes and reddish-brown hair. (International) of diseases that were once the scourge of mankind, for lengthening life, and for raising health standards generally. Without that form of curiosity that leads men to try to find out the cause of diseases and how to control them, we would not enjoy the high standards of health and physical well-being we know today.

Men have never been satisfied that they knew all they wanted or needed to know about the mysteries of life. This has been a good thing for all of us and is a particularly good thing for the health of future generations. Despite the wonderful progress we have made against disease, much remains to be done; there are still numerous unknowns which have to be discovered through research if men are to live full, healthy and happy lives.

The United States Government and voluntary health agencies, foundations, universities, and industry are devoting much energy, time, and money to trying to find how to defeat the life that still rob men of happiness and productivity. When we realize how much research has accomplished and may accomplish in the future, we realize that this kind of curiosity is one of man's finest attributes.
